Limited school boundary change proposed for San Altos, Monterey Heights

The boundary lines between San Altos and Monterey Heights elementary schools could be changed soon to alleviate the need for students east of Lemon Grove Avenue to cross the trolley tracks in their treks to school.

About six students on Angelus and Noble streets would be affected by the boundary change, according to Superintendent Dr. James Justeson.

Students on those streets currently attending San Altos will be able to finish their years there and their younger brothers and sisters will also be allowed to attend San Altos.

Newly enrolling students and families on those streets would be assigned to Monterey Heights.

The Lemon Grove School District Governing Board heard information on the proposed change at its April 28 meeting and will vote on the matter at the May 12 meeting.

"It just doesn't fit anymore to have those streets in the San Altos district," said Justeson, explaining that in past years, there was overcrowding at Monterey Heights which required that some of its natural territory be transferred to the San Altos district.

"Overcrowding at Monterey Heights has now been pared down, and anywhere we don't have to have buses wait for the trolley in order to cross is desirable," he said.

Though the board agenda notes that there have been parental complaints over the years about students having to cross the tracks and attend San Altos, Justeson said the complaints have been limited to one parent.

Youth program offered

This summer, San Diego County Youth Involvement, Inc. will offer a fee-based program for Lemon Grove teenagers in need of activities to fill their days.

According to Carla Gomez, Youth Involvement project manager, this pilot program will provide mini-workshops on violence prevention and drug awareness as well as field trips to local museums and parks and tours of television and radio stations.

"This is the first time we are providing a program for kids who are not already in trouble," said Gomez, explaining that her organization is mainly involved with youths throughout the county who have had brushes with the law.

Gomez explained that Lemon Grove was selected as the area for the pilot program, mainly because the organization is headquartered here, and administrators felt they wanted to give something back to the community."

Dubbed LEGIT (Lemon Grove Involvement Team), the program will begin June 23 and offer eight weeks of activities which will cost about $25 or more per week.

"We've noticed that there are a lot of kids hanging out on the streets here in the summer; boredom is where the trouble sometimes starts, and we want to offer supervised activities for teenagers," said Gomez.

If the pilot program which has openings for about 25 Lemon Grove teenagers is successful, it will be expanded to other communities next summer, and even continued into the fall, offering activities during after-school hours, said Gomez.

"We want to keep the kids off the streets and prevent them from getting into trouble," she said.

San Diego County Youth Involvement offers a range of countywide programs for homeless and troubled youths.

Jacob supporters cover Lemon Grove

Candidate for County Supervisor (District 2) Dianne Jacob (left) kicked off her first precinct walk for distributing campaign literature last Saturday morning at the Grove Pastry Shop. Volunteers gathered maps and literature, and after a brief pep talk from Jacob, they were on their way to cover the entire city before the morning ended. Above, Carol Dorman (the Mayor's wife) shows her support.

Grossmont Board hears students' concerns

by June M. Mott, Board member

This is the time of year when thoughts turn to graduation and summer. Board members were assigned to the 10 high schools for the end-of-the-year ceremonies. It has been traditional for board members and district managers to hand out diplomas over the four-day period. President Ken Whitcomb, although absent from Thursday's meeting, had made assignments by school for each board member.

Three employees were recognized for their contributions to the district: George Logan of Valhalla who received the California Coaches' Association High School Boys' Soccer Coach of the Year Award; Billie Bonomo, records clerk at Valhalla and Glenda Burkhart, custodian at Foothills Adult Training Center, as recipients of the quarterly Outstanding Employee Award.

In other business the Board approved submitting applications under the Model Program Demonstration Site Grants program and the authorization to implement the Advancement Via Individual Determination (AVID) program, if funded. This program has been nationally recognized as very effective in dealing with dropout prevention, intervention, and the recovery of students who leave school before they should. By this fall all 10 comprehensive high schools in the District will have AVID programs. Funds from the grants cover registration fees, substitutes, travel expenses, meals and materials. When and if funded, each school receives $3,000 to cover staff development costs associated with the program. Currently in effect at several schools, the program has been very effective.

The Board designated April 20-26 as Earth Week and April 22 as Earth Day in recognition of the threat to our earth from pollution, drought, ozone depletion, rain forest destruction, and other environmental problems. Passage of the Clean Air Act, the Clean Water Act, and formation of the Environmental Protection Agency twenty-two years ago has resulted in more than 200 million people worldwide expressing their environmental concerns. Each school observed the week in their own way.

Assistant Superintendent of Business Services Fred Martinez reported to the Board a net reduction in the reserves since February of $70,000. This leaves the reserves at 2 percent of the operating budget rather than the 3 percent that the state wants. Special Education revenues have been reduced by $400,000 because of a cut in state funds to this program. The overall gain districtwide of about 600 students over last year has resulted in a 30 percent recovery of the District's four-year enrollment decline. Certified substitute wages for this period is 11 percent higher than the same period last year; classified is up by 15 percent; illness, personal necessity and personal leaves are 16 percent higher than last year. Long-term substitute usage is 26 percent less than last year. The state is currently predicting a $2.3 billion - $3 billion deficit on June 30, which will undoubtedly have a negative impact on school funding. This information will not be available until the end of the third quarter which doesn't leave the Board time to take action; therefore, the contingency fund becomes the only source for budget coverage for state funding shortages. Adult Education's previously reported deficit of $17,000 is unchanged.

Collections for the month amounted to $8.5 million; over 50 percent of this amount comes from student enrollment so it is obvious what would happen if the Parental Choice Initiative were to

B-Words Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

City staff

Over the years, and in sitting through many meetings, I have observed a popular politician's trick to get attention, and, I guess, it is supposed to make them look good.

It is called "staff bashing."

You have people who are employed, often at the pleasure of the body, which means they can be fired by minute action, at any time.

These staff members are often paid well and spend not a little of their salaries on Maalox. The purpose of the "bashing" is almost always without real merit other than to demonstrate power or gain column inches in the media. I have seen congressmen, supervisors, councilpersons and many board members use this cheap-shot technique, and I deplore it.

I want to go on record as endorsing, and yes, applauding the staff of the city of Lemon Grove. I would like to think that it is because of the astute judgment and the brilliant deliberative process that the council has surrounded itself with the quality of staff that we have. I do think that some divine assistance must be credited with our situation, in that we are not all that smart.

City Manager Jack Shelver is a treasure that cannot be equalled, in my estimation, anywhere. He is a small-town boy with large-town talents, and I rue the day that he retires or is enticed away from us. His guidance in the choice of our department heads has provided us with the best, and his decisions as to how we handle the budget are thoroughly deliberated and honestly concluded. I do not believe that we have ever been steered into troubled waters by this fine navigator. Our Fire Chief, Recreation Director, Planning and Finance Directors are first-rate, and act exactly as they should, in behalf of the entire populace of our community.

Our City Engineer, Public Works Supervisor, Building Inspector, and Code Enforcement Officer are all most efficient and are truly dedicated to their jobs with more than just a monetary devotion.

It is remarkable that we have been so fortunate in selecting a staff that is collectively so, I guess the word would be "appropriate" for our little-town atmosphere.

Without listing everyone's name, I will just testify that everyone on the Lemon Grove city staff is exceptional, and with the first smile that one gets from Yvonne at the front desk, it is all a big plus from there on.

Not everyone gets the answer that they want when coming to City Hall, but there always must be a friendly atmosphere and a sincere effort to accommodate our residents within the laws and codes that prevail. I am firmly convinced that Lemon Grove city staff is dedicated to those goals and am very proud of them for it.

It is very easy to put the impossible tasks on a staff person and then use same as a handy scapegoat when the goals are not fully met.

In the old days, city managers were prime targets for politicians to push the blame off on when their own responsibilities were not honored. Their job life was about five years on the average back then. Now we expect the best but do not ask the impossible.

I see cities that have a turnover of management almost on a yearly basis, and wonder how they ever get anything done at all. I also see where it looks like they don't.

Here is a hearty pat on the back for all of the Lemon Grove city staff, and the hope that they will continue to serve us well for a long time to come.

Historic battle re-enacted

Cinco de Mayo is often confused with Mexican Independence Day, however, the May 5th holiday is actually a celebration of Mexico's struggle against French imperialism.

The clamor of battle and resounding blasts of gunshots will be heard during Old Town's Cinco de Mayo celebration as the May 5, 1862 battle of Puebla is re-enacted May 2 and 3.

Under the direction of four year re-enactment veteran Matthew Mehran of Lemon Grove, more than 50 volunteers will play the roles of French imperialists battling Mexican resistance troops.

"Historic re-enactments are becoming an increasingly popular recreational hobby for military history enthusiasts across the country," explains Mehran, a 24-year-old who works in SDSU's theater department.

The Battle of Puebla living history demonstration will take place at Old Town State Historic Park's Cinco de Mayo fiesta Saturday, May 2, at 12:30 and 2:30 p.m. and Sunday May 3, at 12:30 and 4:30 p.m.

WANTED : Dr. Jerry Legerton For his Position on Revenue and Taxation

Nearly every major economic power in the history of man had excessive taxation in conjunction with its decline from power. While I support local and representative government, the tax structure puts major sources of taxation into State and Federal coffers. Cities, while having to execute mandated programs, are left with secondary sources of revenue and dependency on the larger governmental bodies.

The three largest categories of revenue for Lemon Grove are Sales Tax, Property Tax, and Vehicle License fees. Sales tax is a function of the strength of our business community and the support our residents give to that community. Property tax is a function of the property values. Vehicle license fees are a function of the buying patterns of the residents which is based on our demographic-economic mix.

Four areas of action are clear:

1. Strengthen the business community by recruitment of new business and the development of existing businesses.
2. Encourage residents to utilize local businesses.
3. Strengthen the community and inspire community pride with resultant increase in property values. This has its effect in home owner equity appreciation and increased property tax upon the change of ownership of property.
4. Prevent destabilization of the community that results in a lower socioeconomic population base. The higher the base the newer the vehicles that are owned. The newer the vehicles, the higher revenues generated from license fees.

Succeeding in these areas of action will result in revenue stability over the long term. There is no genius in raising the rates of taxation. It is fundamental to try to lower the rate of taxation while enlarging the "pie". We enlarge the pie by strengthening the community.

Commentary

by Paul Treske

Fourteen years of legal wrangling is finally over, and Robert Alton Harris is dead.

Let me make this very clear right here at the top: I am in favor of the death penalty, but I am extremely uneasy over many aspects of what surrounded Harris' death last week. Even a man as unforgivable as Harris should be allowed to die with dignity and much of what went on around him, created by both friend and foe, worked cruelly to deprive him of that.

The actions of certain members of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in those final hours were virtually unbelievable. Governor Wilson summed it up well and succinctly when he called the final 12 hours of Harris' life a "macabre circus." It was to be expected that his lawyers, who had fought so long and hard to save his life, would fan out across the countryside trying every last-minute ploy on every judge they could find; that is what they are supposed to do. But that these judges, after having 14 years to consider any and all mitigating circumstances that might affect this case, would issue stay after stay because of their personal opposition to the death penalty was bizarre! Knowing, early on, that the conservative Supreme Court would overrule them, they nevertheless played cruelly with Harris' last hours and left the general, non-legally trained public with an even firmer belief that there is no such thing as law or justice; only lawyers and judges endlessly duelling among themselves!

How do you mend a broken spleen?

by Joseph Walker

Tell the truth-you haven't paid much attention to your spleen lately, have you? Don't worry-you're not alone. I mean, it's not like there's a National Spleen Association out there working to increase public awareness of spleen diseases and disorders. We don't have volunteers going door-to-door to raise money for spleen research, or rock stars joining forces to produce a music video for "Our Ductless Friend, The Spleen." And through years of professional and amateur late-night channel-hopping, I don't recall ever zapping across a 24-hour spleen telethon ("Come on, folks, let's get these telephones ringing for Jerry's spleen!")

From a public relations standpoint, the spleen has a couple of problems. The first has to do with function. Everyone knows the basic job description for hearts, lungs, brains, stomachs and kidneys, right? But by show of hands, how many of you know that the spleen is where your body's required lymphocytes are produced? (What's that? You'd like to know what a lymphocyte is before you answer? Exactly my point).

The second P.R. problem for the spleen lobby is romantic. Not only do we understand the important bodily function other organs perform, but we have extended their function from the physical to the emotional. One who has been deeply hurt by a loved one is said to have "a broken heart." Love has likewise been known to addle the brain, put butterflies in the stomach or land a blow like a kidney punch-which, of course takes your breath away.

Now try to conjure up a little romance with this line: "One look at you, baby, and my spleen started pumping out lymphocytes like crazy!"

Not exactly heart-warming, if you'll pardon the expression.

Of course, if you've ever had spleen trouble it's a different story. A young friend of mine named Brandon was recently involved in a motorcycle accident. Thankfully, he was wearing a helmet so it wasn't nearly as serious as it could have been. But nobody ever said anything about spleen protection. These days, every breath Brandon draws reminds him-painfully-of the existence of his spleen. His doctors say it'll be three months before he can run again and at least six months before he can participate in any sports, and all because of a bit of muscle and tissue near his stomach he didn't even know he had until it was injured.

It's human nature to take certain things for granted. Most of us don't talk about our health unless there's something wrong. Nobody runs into the office and announces, "Hey, the bus was right on time again this morning!" And when was the last time a renter called the apartment manager to report that the dishwasher is working splendidly?

Harris dies

Equally disturbing was the "blood-lust" evident in much of the public. Listening to radio talk shows, one heard over and over such sentiment as "zap 'em all," "just gas the whole bunch of them," and "after we gas Harris, lets just mop out the chamber and get the next one." Other radio "personalities" dealt in gas chamber jokes and death penalty contests to appease the listeners need for blood. It was disgusting and loathsome and left me with images of ancient hangings and beheadings which became fun and games holidays for the viewers in the village square.

I would like to believe that at least a portion of that execution jollity was the result of the drawn out legal proceedings that led to April 21, but I suspect that we are an overall revenge-oriented people who have moved only a minimal distance from the Old Testament's "an eye for an eye."

It is painfully difficult to determine who from among all of those committing murder should be put to death. I suspect that in actuality, only a very few of the most cold blooded pre-meditators deserve to die. But, with the public blood lust on one side and the uncertain, obfuscating legal system or the other, making these kinds of decisions becomes doubly difficult. If we cannot decide rationally we run the risk of reverting to older times and places where death was cheap and man was infinitely more barbaric. Unfortunately I hear echoes of those times all around me. Perhaps we never even left.

Which is OK, I guess, as long as we're talking about machines, buses and bodily functions. But too often we carry that same cavalier attitude over to our relationships with other people. We assume that family, friends and business associates will fulfill our expectations in the respective roles they play in our lives. And, as long as they are fulfilling those expectations ... well, that's their job, so it's no big deal. But then something comes along to disrupt the smooth flow of our lives - a spouse has to leave town for a few days, a close friend moves away, a key secretary is out of the office on sick leave - and suddenly, we realize how important that individual was to our success and happiness. Only by then, sometimes it's too late.

How much better for all of us if we'd take a little time each day to express appreciation for the little things other people do to make life so pleasant. It isn't as difficult as it might sound. Just pick out two or three little things that our spouse does without fanfare each day, and blow a bugle or two in gratitude. Or, you could send a card to a friend for no other reason than to simply say, "thanks" for being a friend. Or, you could acknowledge the daily efforts of teachers to make a difference in the lives of your children.

You get the idea? I'm not advocating anything revolutionary here-just heightened sensitivity to the people and circumstances around you. Notice them. Let them know you appreciate them. And make sure that your appreciation comes straight from the heart.

As opposed to the spleen.

(Joseph Walker is a bishop in The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.)

From Where I Sit

Foreign soil and water

by Frank Andrews

After years trying to fish all the "10,000 lakes of Minnesota" to no avail I switched to Canadian waters. My first trip across the northern border was with Jack Conner, the distinguished sports writer for the Minneapolis Tribune. Although the trip ended in chaos I did get a taste of the terrific fishing in the virgin waters of Canada.

On the Jack Conner's expedition we discovered and caught many sacks full of the speckled, slab-sized crappie. After that I drove the nearly 350 miles weekly or as often as I could muster up an enthused crew. There were no limit or regulations pertaining to the crappie as they were an unknown specie at the time.

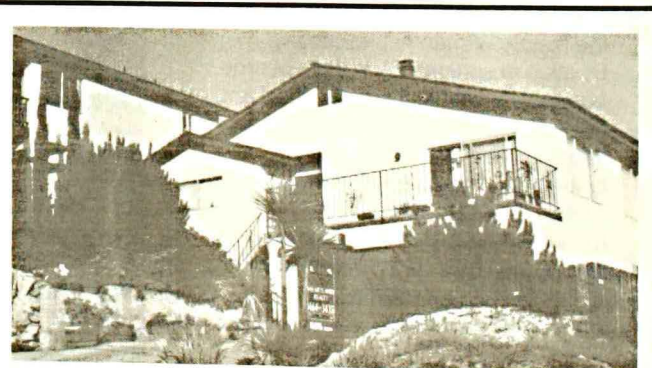

I do believe that the intrigue of fishing foreign waters and the lower percent of money exchange helped bolster my interest. To beat the Canadian customs at their own game also made each border crossing a challenge. In winter, when we crossed with a load of nice fresh minnows, we were scolded harshly by the authorities as they frowned on us Americans bringing unknown and unwanted species into their sparkling, clean Canadian waters. They would dump the water off our fresh bait and let us cross. Of course, we headed for the nearest filling station to refill our buckets and save those beautiful shiners. I don't think that we ever lost over a couple on any trip. Winter bait in Canada was nearly impossible to buy as the Canadians thought fishing on the ice at subzero temperatures was only for the dumb Swedes from Minnesota. After only a couple years and many long trips both winter and summer, we decided to build our own summer cabin. The first two sold right away so we built a two-story, year-round house for all seasons. We would work hard all winter in Southern California and then pack up for our annual 2,600 mile trek to the border.

The bag limit or the number of fish that could be taken across the Canadian border after coming so far was very few, only five or six of each specie. There too I had a method of fooling the game warden. One summer, my wife, Willie Marie, brought along a Tupperware hamburger patty maker. By grinding the pike fillets with an old style zinc meat grinder and adding a few drops of red food coloring the resulting patties had all the earmarks and looks of ground beef. Those boneless fish patties were so delicious when prepared by my special chef, Willie Marie. The Canadian Game Warden stopped us at the border and looked closely at the red patties in our freezer, but not suspecting anything off-color, waved us across.

We have had very few confrontations at the Canadian border crossing by telling only little "white lies." I can remember the trip north during the Summer Olympics which was held at Montreal that year. A young girl Customs' trainee was manning the fort and asked, "Do you folks have any firearms aboard?"

By my answering "no" and the young "eager beaver" finding my 22 pistol wrapped in a towel under my seat, I was accused of transporting a "concealed weapon." I guess that is the worst kind, as my nearly new firearm was quickly confiscated by the too-young officer. After just a short conference with one of the older officials, I could have bought the gun back for $50. I had just purchased it from a friend the day before for only $25 so I said, "thanks but no thanks." That incident was recorded on their computer and would turn up later to haunt us on another and more memorable crossing.

I have since learned that telling the truth is the best way. It not only keeps you out of serious trouble but leaves you with a nice, clear conscience to enjoy your vacation in our neighbor's beautiful country.

Camp Fire kids to hold annual ceremony

Children and teens in full uniform and ceremonial costumes will pay homage to the Native American cultures and traditions that have heavily influenced one of America's oldest youth organizations, Camp Fire Boys and Girls at the Grand Council Fire, Saturday, May 9.

This year's theme is "A Gathering Among the Trees." The public is welcome to join members of Camp Fire Boys and Girls - past and present - at the 4 p.m. ceremony at the Patrick Henry High School Amphitheater, 6702 Wandermere Dr., San Diego. The event is funded in part by the Sony Corporation of America Foundation.

The Council's only Native American-based group, the Rincon Indian Camp Fire Kids, will be the official lighters and extinguishers of the fire. In addition to the tall trees surrounding the amphitheater, giving the ceremony its title, a large tepee decorated with Native American Indian symbols painted by local children will offer a dramatic backdrop.

The annual event honors Camp Fire kids for their service and accomplishments in Camp Fire and the community throughout the past year. Camp Fire, an 82-year-old co-ed youth organization, is open to all children from kindergarten through the 12th grade.

For more information, call Dennise Naylor at the Camp Fire office, 291-8985.

Grossmont District Board Meeting

prevail. (The state pays nothing when a student is not enrolled, so don't let anyone tell you differently.) Property taxes amounted to $2.2 million; and the remaining $2 million came from various state and federal programs. April, May and June will consume a large share of these monies, plus expenses for summer school and maintenance. Electricity use decreased four percent but because of the increase in rates, expenditures were up $6,428 compared with last year. Gas consumption increased by $23,587 because of the many cold and rainy days this year. Water usage was down by 16 percent but dollar savings do not reflect this because of the rates: expenditures increased by $26,310. Keep in mind that these figures reflect conditions through February only. If the current heat and humidity continue, electrical charges will increase sharply because of the use of air-conditioning or the use of fans in classrooms.

The Board approved seeking bids for the stadium bleachers at Santana High School.

Occupational Training Services, Inc. (OTS) has been awarded the Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA)-funded Hire-A-Youth Program (formerly the Summer Youth Program) contract for 1992. This group has subcontracted with the district's Career Development Center for office space and specific instructional services for the past five years. An anticipated 500 district students will be served by this contract; up to $20,000 will be paid by OTS to the Grossmont District for these services plus additional adult education enrollment funds for instructional services.

Board approval of an agreement involving the Food Services department will result in lunches for K-8th grades at Our Lady of Perpetual Help and Saint Kierans Catholic Schools being provided daily for one year. Cost to those schools for each meal will be $1.50. Such lunches will be prepared by the cafeteria staffs of El Capitan and El Cajon high schools.

Acceptance of two gifts from groups of students at Granite Hills and a direction of the sending of letters of appreciation were approved. The Girls/Boys P.E. Coke Fund donated a thigh and knee machine ($646.50) and the ASB donated a music keyboard, percussion pad, and sound mixer ($3,939).

Military widows to hold potluck

The Inland San Diego County Chapter, Society of Military Widows, will have a "Mothers Day Potluck Luncheon" following the business meeting Saturday, May 9, at 10:15 a.m. at the First Southern Baptist Church Hall, 5651 Water Street, La Mesa.

The Society benefits widows of career military. So bring your favorite dish, personal service, and join in the camaraderie. For further information, call 443-8804 or 465-2140.

Most of the meeting consisted of a student forum, sponsored by all 10 ASB's in the District, that consisted of students firing questions at the Board about everything from curriculum to condoms.

The phasing-out of lockers bothered students because of the need to carry all their books. Fred Martinez, business superintendent, explained that cost of maintaining the lockers and increasing vandalism have been the two factors that have resulted in the decision to stop furnishing lockers with building West Hills.

The next question tied in with lockers; a Valhalla student felt that the load of books plus only six minutes to get from class-to-class should be considered before a student loses credit for a class for seven tardies. He wanted the Board to consider other alternatives. I pointed out that being tardy to a job in the business world results in being fired and that the Board is trying to build positive attitudes toward this while students are in school. Assistant Superintendent Carl Wong responded saying that a tardy student interrupts the flow of the lesson and disrupts the class. Seven tardies are considered a reasonable number by the administration.

One girl wanted to know if the rumor was true that certain Advanced Placement students were going to have to take and pass the AP test next year in order to receive honors credit. The answer, to her obvious relief, was "no."

Another student asked if "university classes" (college prep.) were going to be merged with applied arts and remedial. Governing Board member Tom Davies responded, saying that all the printed research indicates that all levels should be in one class (heterogeneous grouping) so that everyone has the same chance to be exposed to quality learning.

Although not all the research results agree with this statement at this time, there are some unofficial programs in this district that are experimenting with this concept. "Throwing the baby out with the bath water" has never been popular in this district. Also, this idea is an old one tried many years ago and abandoned in favor of accelerated learning and more appropriately paced courses for students who couldn't keep up with such a program. This is known as "tracking." I would rather see both types so that students who felt they could handle more difficult courses could move up to those classes. I do not believe in putting students into classes where they can only experience failure and decide to drop out of school. With the current thinking that schools aren't difficult enough now, what would happen to such a student?

Another student pled to have P.E. credit granted for sports; Carl Wong explained that when Prop. 13 was passed, sports were moved outside the school day along with marching bands, etc. Until there is some kind of movement by the state to reconsider the loss of such funds, sports, et al., will remain uncredited.

Another student, referring to AIDS, asked if the Board was going to permit the sale of condoms on campus. Antonio Oroseo, responding, said students had not proposed anything yet and the Board would have to consider the pros and cons of any proposal. I believe since the HIV-virus (AIDS) has no cure at this time and can only result in death, this whole issue raises the question of responsible abstinence. That is the only answer to this terrible fatal disease, no matter what one's raging hormones encourage. Listen to what Magic Johnson is telling you: "No sex until marriage!" He found out the hard way.
